Box contains correspondence from the Estates and Trusts Section of the office of Alien Property. Most of the documents contained herein are related to claims by heirs of deceased property holders to seized property that was vested by the OAP. The contents appear largely unimportant, however, as most files deal with individual claims of negligible value.

Box #63 - Box contains mostly reports deriving from the Office of Strategic Services that have been sent to various other government agencies as part of their correspondence. Most of these reports are from 1944, and happen to be irrelevant since there is virtually no mention of any assets whatsoever. Box also contains intelligence on certain South American countries. One document from the Alien Property Custodian has been flagged for copying.

Box #64 - Contains documents originating in the Department of War and Department of State, which are primarily correspondence between gov't agencies. Documents date from 1944-1945, and are of no importance to us. Only one document has been flagged, which contains a short excerpt about a bank.

Contains copies of personal letters collected by the War Dept during 1944-1945. A typical letter generally either speaks of someone of draft age who is hiding in another country in order to evade the draft or makes allusions to the perceived wrongdoings of one of the Allied governments. Most such letters are from overseas. They do not appear to be of any use to us. Also included in box is a Civil Censorship Requirements Guide Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, which details military, political, and economic Commodity requirements during the war. This also does not appear to be of any important use to us.

Contains information from the War Dept. ~~from~~ 1942 - 1945. Most intelligence gathered in this box is from personal letters which were heared for family and friends in the U.S. from overseas, but were intercepted by the U.S. gov't and investigated for possible illegal activities. None of these deal with the types of assets that merit our interest. Box also contains general correspondence between the War ~~Dept~~. and various other government agencies. Contains copies of personal letters collected by the War Dept during 1944-1945. A typical letter generally either speaks of someone of draft age who is hiding in another country in order to evade the draft or makes allusions to the perceived wrongdoings of one of the Allied governments. Most such letters are from overseas. They do not appear to be of any use to us. Also included in box is a Civil Censorship Requirements Guide Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, which details military, political, and economic Commodity Requirements during the War. This also does not appear to be of any important use to us.
